Yealink QuickMate DM48 installation link: Yealink QuickMate DM48Nailed it: A Fierce Six enthusiast looks back on gruelling training and the start of our 2017-18 season Article by Emma Collings, Staff Writer My first season of Fierce Eight was a stellar one. Forget the fact I was just 19 and my first season of the Fierce Eight was in 2016-17. For me it was a masterpiece, not only did we win the House of Fraser Trophy, which I'm still very proud of, but it was also my first ever Yorkshire run, we won the Yorkshire 5K by over 9 minutes and had an amazing atmosphere for the whole week. Although it's now over a year since that season, I'm still very proud of it all. So after I'd won that season I decided to use that build up to a new campaign, one I was looking forward to even more. The Fierce Six is right up there on my list of best things ever and I couldn't wait to be back and do that again. This time we had been training for a week before the first race at Manchester and, like previous years, I was determined to do my best so I could just be happy, not disappointed, if I didn't manage to do as well as I did the previous year. We had been training on one of the indoor pools in Manchester for an hour each day, which we knew would be the main factor in how our team went. As with previous years, we started with a relay at the free-running and within the first kilometre of training it was becoming very clear that we were ready to go. It was a brilliant feeling. Usually the way it would work is that you would start with a free-run and build up from there, but in the first kilometre we had actually had two relays back to back. We had the first three at the end of the first kilometre with a 1km
