How to allow app to access the file system? I'm new to Xcode and Objective-C. I need my app to access the file system. How do I do this? A: If you want to have a user-selectable file-system directory, you can do this by calling [[NSFileManager defaultManager] containerURL:myCustomDirectory isDirectory:YES]; Note that this directory doesn't show up as a folder in Xcode, as it's not a real folder. You can, however, drag files and folders into that directory. From the File System Programming Guide:

Accessing File System Containers You can retrieve the list of container directories by calling the containerURL:isDirectory: method of the NSFileManager class. The first parameter is a URL, and the second parameter is a BOOL indicating whether the first parameter is a file URL
