The purpose of this study was to assess long-term effectiveness of combined intradetrusor botulinum toxin type A (BTX-A) and BTX-B injections on quality of life (QOL) and urodynamic parameters. A total of 65 patients (mean age  $55.5 \pm 11.0$  years) with an overactive bladder (OAB) and neurogenic lower urinary tract dysfunction were included. The patients were treated with BTX-A 200 units, combined with intravesical BTX-B 500 units. The diagnosis of neurogenic bladder dysfunction was based on urodynamics, including electromyography (EMG) and urodynamic testing. QOL was assessed preoperatively and at 12-year follow-up using the Patient Perception of Bladder Condition (PPBC) and Incontinence Quality of Life (I-QOL) questionnaires. Postoperative bladder function was evaluated 12 years after surgery. There was no significant difference in QOL and urodynamic parameters between before and after treatment. However, after 12 years follow-up, PPBC and I-QOL scores were significantly improved, QOL was better, and detrusor overactivity was completely recovered. Concomitant injections of BTX-A and BTX-B for the treatment of patients with neurogenic OAB showed a sustained improvement in incontinence-related symptoms and QOL.
