What's New In?

PowerWorld is a free application designed to help Mac users understand battery health and the perils of charging. It's designed to help users see battery health in their own setting and decide on whether to charge their device now or charge in the morning instead. The application is currently in beta. The app uses only one instance of Access, and includes support for both .accdb and .mdb file formats. Users have to install the application from either the Mac App Store or within iTunes on their device. PowerWorld comes in 32 and 64-bit versions. Features:

- Indicate the battery health status, a percentage of charge, voltage and amperage
- Display current charging speed and remaining time
- Display the estimated time until battery fully charges
- Display the estimated time until battery fully discharges
- Display the battery health in three different levels, including Full, Low and Empty
- Display battery information in table format, sorted alphabetically
- Display battery information graphically, including charging and discharging data
- Calibrate and display temperature at the battery level
- Display battery information of two devices at the same time
- Show battery type (Li-Ion, Li-Poly or Ni-Mh)
- Modify and store battery type
- View battery level and temperature in graphical and table formats
- Display capacity in both table and graphical formats
- Show estimated life and capacity remaining
- Show estimated time until battery fully charges
