Since a child, Kaitlyn has always had a special attraction to the paranormal. In the past, Kaitlyn has lived in cities such as Nashville and Chicago, both of which are known for their paranormal activity. She has been a believer of the supernatural since she was a teenager, as it fit well with her frequent outbursts of anxiety. Although an atheist by birth, she's grown to question her beliefs as of late. Since relocating back home in California, she's constantly on the look out for something new. Kaitlyn is the co-host of The Ripper Hour and The Ripper Radio Hour on the JB Radio Network. Het thema in de aanloop naar de verkiezingen is volgens de commissaris van de VN-Vijfde Wereldconferentie voor de Rechten van de Mens, Marzuki Darusman, alarmerend. In een verslag dat de jury vorige maand heeft uitgebracht, staat over de verkiezingen in Myanmar dat de situatie steeds ernstiger wordt. Aan de dag dat premier Rutte het Nederlandse verbod uitvaardigde op de visvangst in het gebied gaat de reden gedeeltelijk over het alvast betere regime van Birma in 2011 en 2012. Dat verbod werd genomen door een humanitaire crisis die door het regime werd beheerst. Twee derde van deze jaren waren gezegd te hebben geweest dat de hele gedachte aan visgebieden komt te vervallen door Birma en dat sprake is nog steeds. "We zijn niet op het punt van een totalitaire dictatuur", zegt Darusman. a69d392a70

Out of the woods: timely treatment of presumed severe infections drives a global reduction in case fatality. Most people with presumed severe infection receive inadequate therapy. Interventions that offer timely treatment to reduce case fatality could help prevent thousands of deaths each year. We reviewed data from a clinical trial of sepsis care and globally from published reports, and developed a mathematical model to estimate the relationship between case fatality rates and the timeliness of interventions. Data were collected from 91 patients with suspected severe infections enrolled in an intensive care unit (ICU) intervention trial. An intermediate sepsis case fatality rate of 9.5 per cent was observed in this study. We identified case fatality rates from an additional 3785 patients from published studies and from reported figures from the World Health Organization (WHO) and the US National Vital Statistics System. Adjusted for case mix, fatality rates fell as treatment timeliness increased. The relationship between treatment timeliness and case fatality in sepsis was 'J'-shaped, with the highest rate of death in those who received early care but not in those who were given late treatment. Our findings have important implications for current strategies to reduce mortality from severe infection.

Local industry looks to lure shoppers to city Photo by TERRY WEED Sales rep Joseph Powers shows a cosmetics display as he talks to a customer at the St. Helena Farmers' Market. The Imperial Valley has become a meeting place for Californians from all over, though it's the local industries that really benefit, said Powers, who is selling cosmetics at the market. When Joe Powers steps behind the makeup counter at his St. Helena Farmers' Market shop, she asks one of her favorite questions: "What kind of a deal is this?"
