1. Field of the Invention The invention relates to a method of manufacturing an electronic component and, more particularly, to a method of manufacturing a capacitor.

2. Description of the Related Art In recent years, the use of electrical and electronic components has significantly increased in a mobile communication field. The components manufactured for the mobile communication field have to be highly integrated with lower costs. Accordingly, a high reliability is required for the electrical and electronic components, which the components are used for the mobile communication field. Particularly, an example of a capacitor, which is used for the mobile communication field, includes a capacitor body, a lower electrode, a dielectric layer, and an upper electrode. In the case of the capacitor, an electrostatic capacity of the capacitor is determined by the dielectric layer and the upper electrode. However, for the capacitor having a large area of the dielectric layer, it is difficult to decrease a leakage current (i.e., a current flowing when there is no applied voltage). Therefore, in order to prevent the leakage current, a material capable of having a high dielectric constant is Ischemic colitis in the context of sickle cell disease. Herein we present a case of an adolescent male with sickle cell disease and ischemic colitis. His family history is positive for cerebrovascular disease, and his father died of a stroke at age 57. This case demonstrates that ischemic colitis should be included in the differential diagnosis of acute abdominal pain in a young patient with sickle cell disease. Sickle cell disease is a common cause of colitis, and most cases are primary in nature. The clinical presentation, including hemodynamic stability, is similar to that of ulcerative colitis. Ischemic colitis should be suspected in patients with sickle cell disease presenting with ischemic abdominal pain. The need for early diagnosis and prompt treatment of ischemic colitis is essential to prevent devastating complications.

$\left[F(y)-F(x)\right]^2\}\{\sigma_{\{\text{bias}\}}\}^2\} \$$  The function  $F(y)$  is a monotonic function of the true values of  $y$  and  $F(x)$  is a monotonic function of the assigned values of  $x$ . The function  $F(x)$  and  $F(y)$  approach zero as the assigned values of  $x$  and  $y$  approach the true values of  $x$  and  $y$ .  $F(x)$  and  $F(y)$  approach  $-1$  as the difference between the assigned and true values of  $x$  and  $y$  approaches  $\infty$  (in the worst case).  $\sigma_{\{\text{bias}\}}$  is the bias variance (see [hollander1972statistical] for definition of  $\sigma_{\{\text{bias}\}}$ ). Results =====
 Figures [fig:fig2]-[fig:fig3] show plots of the bias and  $\sigma_{\{\text{bias}\}}$  for the true value of
