The outlook plugin allows you to synchronize Outlook 2003/2007/2010 data and Apple iCloud data in real-time with a single context menu action. Even though iCloud has been around for quite some time, Microsoft Outlook is still one of the most common applications used by millions of users. You can now use the Outlook plugin to bring your Outlook data up to speed and seamlessly synchronize it with iCloud without any hiccups. Microsoft Outlook allows users to store more than just contacts and tasks, it can also be used to store Gmail, Yahoo Mail, Hotmail messages, calendar events, and more. Despite its superior functionality and flexibility, storing a variety of data in Outlook still has a few flaws. Sometimes you might also want to store some other important data, as well as this requires a custom plugin or add-in. You might also find that you need to synchronize data regularly, but unfortunately, this requires that you create 2 separate Outlook plugins for each and every account. Luckily there is a solution to all this; all you need to do is use the Outlook plugin to synchronize your Outlook contacts and calendar data with iCloud. Through this plugin, you can sync Outlook calendar and contacts with the iCloud platform, allowing you to save data from one location to another in real-time. This allows you to synchronize the same data between Microsoft Outlook and Apple iCloud in a single plug-in. You can also integrate the plugin into Microsoft Outlook so that you can sync contacts and calendar data from iCloud to your Outlook contacts list. You can also sync contacts and events with iCloud very easily, all you need to do is to choose the contacts or calendar items you want to sync, choose the iCloud account and the sync your data. Once the sync is successful, you will be notified and all the sync progress will be recorded to a TXT log file. You can also locate the local log file via Internet Explorer and view more details about the process. Bridging the gap between Outlook data and Apple iCloud information is CodeTwo Sync for iCloud, a practical application for data synchronization. The Microsoft Outlook plugin integrates seamlessly with the host program and allows users to synchronize folders quickly between the two platforms. The addin is compatible with both one and two-way synchronization tasks and users are free to target any folder they want. The plugin can also be employed to automatically transfer Outlook contacts, as well as calendar and task entries to the iCloud platform. One of the notable features of the practical application is that all the data is synchronized in real time, which can be extremely useful when hard pressed for time. Microsoft Outlook users will immediately notice that a single button is placed in the host suite's ribbon. Having all the functionality behind a single GUI item is a nice feature, as the Office application already comes with numerous buttons and menu items. A context menu option on the chosen folder also allows for quick tasks to be issued and all the transfer processes are recorded to local TXT log files. Should any problems be encountered, a detailed and step-by-step online help document can be employed to solve any issues easily. Screenshots: I love this addin. I once used it for my host file for my PPC mail and it went flawlessly. I also have the list sync addin for iCloud and it works great. Why wont Microsoft use this and start having any addins built in? I guess they want to profit over everyone else in the market. My 2 cents This Addin I have used for years. When I first installed Outlook it took me a week to get the Addin working, but it did and it works. I have never used a Mac as I like the look of Windows, but you should be able to see how it works in Mac. @Jason, Nice to know you are still there! I'm new on CodeTwo forum, I'm a developer with CodeTwo. I'd be glad to answer your post. Thanks for the kind words. The synchronization between Outlook and iCloud is less than 10 ms. The plugin is designed to support the most common sync scenarios, including one-way synchronization. Additional scenarios can be implemented easily in the future. You can check the implementation of any new scenario in the manual. The plugin is distributed as a standalone application, including the necessary library files, making it compatible with almost all major desktop environments
