'Force India race victory crucial for F1 future' Toto Wolff believes the Indianapolis Motor Speedway will ultimately be a driver friendly track Toto Wolff says the win at the United States GP was a crucial development step for the future of Formula One. The Mercedes team won the race from pole position after a rain-delayed start but Wolff says it was not just about confirming the team's pace. "As far as strategy goes we had a very good test in Austin, we did a lot of laps there," he said. "We were quite confident with everything that we did and I think it was actually the best preparation we had for the race. "As a car we were technically very well prepared. "I think the tyre prep-work was also important. It was a real test for the tyre guys, because of how they work on one set of tyres for quite a long time. "And we also tested new aero components on both cars, which we didn't really have time to use at Austin. And Indy is another full track to run on. "We've done three of them. I think it's a good track. I think it's very good for safety. I think it's very driver-friendly. "The combination of braking zones, the way the track gets long - it's a very nice track to drive on. "One of the things I like about it is that we had the morning practice and the qualifying in the afternoon, so we had a real taste of how the track would be running. "We were on the edge of both brakes and traction quite a lot, so it's a great track for qualifying. "So that was a key test in Austin. "Even though it was a tricky start due to
