of what?" "What I wanted to do." "And that was?" "Do the Right Thing." "No, what did you want to do?" "Act." "How would you have done that?" "With theater." "Why do you think it's a good thing to do through theater?" "Well, you can get a lot of different things out of it." "Like?" "Understanding people." "Do you think understanding people is the best way to do the Right Thing, or do you think it's wrong to do the Right Thing?" "Well, it depends on what you want to understand "about other people." "Oh, I see." "It depends." (students laughing) "I think it's great to understand other people." "So you're saying that theater can do more than the Right "Thing?" "Yes." "But you had this choice "on the TAP test?" "Oh, no. I had the choice "to just do or not to do "the Right Thing." "Like my classmate asked you "to do on this sheet? "His question was: "Would you do what you "thought was right?" "And then my answer was: "no." "He said it's important to do "the Right Thing. "So you said no, and he's trying to decide "whether or not to do the Right "Thing. So what do you think he should do?" "I'd say, what's wrong with him?" "Well, it's not like there's "anything wrong with him. "And he doesn't know what to do. "So what do you think he would be "doing if he did the Right Thing? "Doing the Right Thing?" "Yep. What's New In?

Are we really living in the Information Age? November 26, 2008 Would you be stunned to hear that newspapers are disappearing from the average family? In my case, the answer is "yes." I just can't get used to it. I feel like the world I grew up in is gone. When my daughter was an infant, I made sure to read the newspaper every day. After she turned 2, I would read them a few times a week, once or twice a week, and now, I don't feel the need to actually read the newspaper at all. I haven't seen the newspaper disappear from her house. She takes the paper to school and is constantly flipping through it. She seems to have a never-ending supply. So, why has the world moved on from the newspaper? Because it's a mature medium that doesn't teach kids how to be good consumers. It's a medium that can be used as a vehicle to espouse any point of view, no matter how offensive. Only a small proportion of the estimated 10 million children and adolescents with asthma have robust, long-term disease control. An effective medication will delay or prevent the need for medications in the future, hopefully improving long-term asthma control. Asthma control is most often attained through the use of inhaled corticosteroids (ICS) and long-acting β_2 agonists (LABA). The combination of an ICS and a LABA in one inhaler is the current standard of care. However, a growing body of literature suggests that the use of combination therapy may be associated with increased asthma morbidity, the development of tolerance and, in some cases, the development of tachyphylaxis. These undesirable effects are collectively referred to as "asthma worsening" (AW). The objective of this study is to determine if a new device delivering dual therapy with a single inhaler will be associated with better asthma outcomes compared with combination ICS/LABA inhalers. This study will be a randomized, double-blind, double-dummy, multinational, parallel-group, multicenter study. Approximately 696 participants will be enrolled at 71 sites in the US, Europe and Australia. Approximately 290 patients will be randomized to either the MIROVA UnoBinhaler (AstraZeneca) or Seretide Diskus (Symbiotica). For the first 12 weeks of the study, participants will be asked to use both their assigned inhaler and Seret
