I want to know how to identify the "hostname" property in the curl_easy_setopt? I've done some research about it, but can't seem to find the answer. I've tried serial//mysql --port=3306 --host=192.168.0.101/localhost --user=user1 --password=password1 but I keep getting the following errors: #2002 (HY000): Can't connect to local MySQL server through socket '/var/run/mysqld/mysqld.sock' (2) -> {main} The server is not responding (or the local server's socket is not correctly configured) A: That means that the socket file does not exist. Check first that you have mysql service running, if not, try to start it via service mysql start. Q: How do I loop through a list of sub directories with a pattern to delete the files? I have a folder with lots of sub directories with the same pattern. My intention is to create a script that would loop through them all and delete all the files which are part of the particular directory names. Here is the directory structure /main -dir1 -dir1.txt -dir2 -dir3 -dir2 -dir3 I would like to script which would loop through all the directories and delete everything that matches the pattern of a "dir" with the files inside of it. A: for dir in /main//; do echo "$dir "; find "$dir" -type f -delete; done There is a slight problem though. It will delete all the files below /main/dir1/ as it is a glob. A: For me, the correct, recursive way to do that is to use find. I'm not sure what the intent is behind your current approach, however, if the intent is to delete any directory named dir that contains a dir.txt file, then it might be better to do this: for d in /main//; do if [[$d == "/main/"]] || [[$d == "/main/dir1/"]]; then echo "De
