I know I'm bad, but the reason I came into "Help" was because I mistakenly thought this place was still open. I am most worried about the fact that my right hand was in a sling and that my left hand is numb. Part of the accident was due to my old hulk strength, getting tangled up in the hardware and coming to a complete stop on the edge of a three-meter-high metal shelf. I am ashamed, but I should not worry because a cousin of mine saw it happen. A: You say, "... my right hand was in a sling..." The sling is to protect the arm, and it should be removed for work. This could be done, but since you are not in the hospital or doctor's office, there is no guarantee you won't be re-injured. If you don't have the energy to ask someone to help you remove the sling, it will be removed by someone else that knows how. It will still be removed, but you will not know that someone else did it. I'm going to assume, because of the number of people who've marked your question as a duplicate of "How do I ask a friend to help me remove my sling?", that your injury is not serious. I'd like to answer your question for myself, and ask you to focus on your comfort level - not me, not someone else, not what is safe or not safe. I ask that you do something that's safe for you. Remove the sling, but keep your wrist in a circle of motion. Your wrist should be able to move a bit, and you can even use a pillow under the forearm to raise and lower the arm a bit. Remove your other arm from the sling. If you were laid out on your back, you could get your elbow and hand placed in a position to be lifted and comfortably moved. (I have a coworker who lifted his arm this way when he had wrist-splints. He lifted his arm a little, then pulled it down to his body, then slid his forearm up and across to his other shoulder so it could be moved.) Pull down the rest of the sling. Put your arm on a table, or a chair, or something that will provide a comfortable resting position where you are comfortable putting your arm down. (Be sure that you will be able to rest your arm in this position, so you don't end up in a curled position like you were in.) d0c515b9f4

Just a moment while we sign you in to your account.Article content Public servants received a pat on the back Friday for earning that all-important Grade 9, but the results of the December test weren't pretty. Performers were given a score known as the Academic Performance Index (API), and more than one-third of scores were not acceptable or "problematic" — a "much higher" number than the 27 per cent registered in a similar Math score this April. We apologize, but this video has failed to load. tap here to see other videos from our team. Try refreshing your browser, or Grade 9 API results leave some public servants stinging Back to video The API assesses how high an individual performed in four key subjects — English, math, science and social studies — using the International Benchmark for Testing Educational Achievement, a tool used internationally to compare student performances on standardized tests across provinces and countries. The average API score for all public servants was 914, the 2017 Ontario Ministry of Education (MOE) report on government employee performance assessments shows.*( \t\t\tbool dtom = 1; \t\t\tif (dtom) { \t\t\t\t\tint inum = atoi(argv[1]); \t\t\t\t\tif (!(\num2str(i,buf,sizeof(buf)))) { \t\t\t\t\t\t\t\t\t(fwrite(buf,1,i,stdou)!= i) { \t\t\t\t\t\t\t\t\t\t\t\t\t\t\tfail(argv[0]); \t\t\t\t\t\t\t\t\t\t\t\t\t\t\texit(1); \t\t\t\t\t\t\t\t\t\t\t\t\t\t\t} \t\t\t\t\t\t\t\t\t} \t\t\t\t\t}
