Crack/Keygen/Serial Number.This invention relates to an annealed material which can be used in a high temperature region, particularly as an electrically insulating material which can withstand a high voltage in a short time, and a process for producing the same. As a material for an annealed copper oxide which can withstand a high voltage, a material produced by calcining a composition containing a copper oxide and an alkali compound with an alkali flux to form a solid-solution of the copper oxide and the alkali compound as a main component thereof, and then reducing the solid-solution to obtain a copper oxide is proposed by, for example, Japanese Patent Application Laid-Open Nos. 47012/1978, 72904/1981 and 229503/1988. This annealed copper oxide has a high discharge property due to the effect of a direct reaction (basically, a solid-solution reaction) between the copper oxide and the alkali compound at a temperature of about 600.degree. C. to 700.degree. C., and also has a high dielectric breakdown strength at a temperature of

In the present paper we have studied the transport and fate of the cyclic AMP analogue 9-S-B-D-cAMP (NB-D-cAMPS) and its p-Nitroanilide derivative in neuronal culture. NB-D-cAMPS was present throughout the cytoplasm of neurons after incubation for 8 h with a concentration of 10(-7) M NB-D-cAMPS. The efflux of NB-D-cAMPS was blocked by acetazolamide, which causes a decrease of endogenous cyclic AMP levels. These results suggest that intracellular cyclic AMP could act as a regulator of the transport of exogenous cyclic AMP.
