downloading a script. some of you may already be familiar with easyworship scripts for the ones that have been published with your easyworship version. for those who aren't, i've written something a bit different. at the time of this writing (2007), there is one script available for use with easyworship 6 and one is under development. the script is free and can be downloaded from the easyworship scripts sub-site (<https://github.com/evanhayward/easyworshipscripts>). it requires two configurable files that can be downloaded from the github repository above. the first is `apps/easyworship/scripts.xml` (used to set up the location of the script script) and the second file is `apps/easyworship/scripts_v6.xml` (used to configure the script). if you don't know how to get to github, let me know and i'll help you get there. so what is this easyworship script about? it's a work-in-progress for creating a presentation. it allows you to export various lists (such as verses or passages), and export them in a consistent xml format. in a larger, multi-locational environment, the first time a member of the congregation sees the easyworship script, a dialogue with them will occur which asks them to validate some of the data. once they have, the data needed for the presentation is available to all who participate. using easyworship, you can create slides for audio or video content. add a voice over to text or create an interpretive video. you can drag slides from one file to another. you can use the media player to preview the slides. once you're ready to create your final product, you can do so in a variety of ways. for example, select `file>presentation` and begin using the provided styles, stylesets, or templates; use one of the other custom styles or stylesets; or add them as individual slides in the dashboard. 5ec8ef588b
